Oliver Lansley : Flies (Oberon Modern Plays) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Flies (Oberon Modern Plays):

Some people are frightened of small spaceshellip; Some people are frightened of sharkshellip; Dennis is terrified of flies. In a kill-or-be-killed fight for sanity, one man is determined to conquer his fear of flies, but as darkness falls, what is that ominous hum behind the door? Flies was performed in A Pins and Needles production, running at the Tobacco Factory Bristol, 4th ndash; 22nd October 2011. Incredibly quirky and dynamic black comedyhellip; wonderfully funny, with some brilliantly timed performances.. an inventively written playhellip; Flies is a quirky, off-beat comedy that not only garners great laughs, but also recognises the trappings of phobia, getting to the heart on the issue. rsquo; ndash; Public Reviews
