Den Adler, Judith Adler : Janesville (Postcard History Series) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Janesville (Postcard History Series):

He was amused and very pleased.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. great book check it outBy Lewis W FrazerHas a lot of great details about janesville and around the area plus lots of pics in it I recommend it

In 1837, Henry Janes applied for a post office called Black Hawk for the southern Wisconsin settlement where he ran a ferry across the Rock River. The postmaster general, however, noticed a town already by that name in the Iowa part of Wisconsin Territory, and he assigned the name Janesville, with Janes as postmaster. Two years later, Janes moved his family west, but the community grew to become the Rock County seat, and by 1860 it was Wisconsin's second-largest city. Today more than 62,000 people call the "City of Parks" home.

About the AuthorAuthors Judith and Den Adler have studied Janesvillersquo;s history since coming to the city in 1970. The Craftsman-style stucco home they have owned for over 40 years will be 100 years old in 2012. After completing their 2010 Janesville publication as part of Arcadiarsquo;s Postcard History Series, they turned their attention to the 10,000-plus photographs in the archives of the Rock County Historical Society, as well as images from a recently discovered collection belonging to the City of Janesvillersquo;s engineering department, to produce this book.
