Karel apek : The Mother - A Play in Three Acts before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Mother - A Play in Three Acts:

The Mother is an anti-war drama by the famed Czech writer of the early 20th century Karel apek. The play is influenced by the Spanish civil war and illustrates the difficult relationship between the men that wanted to fight, and their mothers and loved ones who didn't want them to go and join the fight against fascism in order to defend democracy, freedom, and progress and to show the upset and suffering that comes with war. This early work by Karel apek was originally published in 1938 and we are now republishing it with a brand new introductory biography.
